

GAME STATION 1 LOOPY LOOPS

My wife and I were delighted to find out that the school was looking for parent volunteers for the P1/P2 Games Day. I thought it was a wonderful opportunity to observe our daughter and her interactions with her classmates in the school environment first hand.

As this was my first time volunteering at the school, I really had no expectations on how the day would pan out. Thankfully I quickly realised that there was a core group of dedicated parents at the IJ CPC on hand to point newbies like me in the right direction. This must have been how the first few days in school felt like for my daughter!

I was assigned to a games station with a handful of other mummies - I was the only dad! I only realised at that moment how few of my fellow volunteers were fathers like me. Games station duty was intense but satisfying, as we could clearly see that the girls were having a great time. My only "gripe" was that I only managed to catch a short glimpse of my daughter as she passed through my station with her class! Nonetheless, it was a great experience overall and I'm grateful for having had the opportunity to volunteer. I will most certainly try to volunteer again at future events and would wholeheartedly recommend other parents to do the same - especially other dads!
