

GAME STATION 4 SKATING PALS

It was my first parent volunteer event for the year and I enjoyed myself!

Games day is about teamwork, effort and understanding one another's strengths and weaknesses.

I was assigned to be a chaperone at the skating area.

As an old girl, it was great to see familiar faces and catch up with one another. We bonded and shared old stories. Boon Siong, the team leader was clear in explaining the game and was precise and enthusiastic.

I observed that the P1 /P2 girls cheered for their own teams. During their skating session, they cooperated well with their partners and had the determination to start over again when they dropped or missed the plates. The girls were also determined to win as many smiley faces as possible. I could see that the girls trust their partners especially in situations when they were lagging behind. This helped them to interact, communicate and encourage each other.

Overall, I witnessed the IJ spirit - and that put a smile on my face!
